ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., March 18.— All 73 victims of Saturday's explosion in the Willow Grove coal mine were given up for dead today.Only four are known to have died but all hope for 69 entombed miners faded at 11 a. m., 48 hours after an explosion which rocked the huge mine. Officials in charge of the rescue work reported that they could break through the poisonous gases and rock barriers which blanketed the trapped men.More than 100 other miners, most of them gassed or injured, were rescued.Bodies of John Marks, motor-man, and Ross McFadden, were removed from the mine before dawn today. John Richards, superintendent, and Howard Sanders, tip-ple boss, died of gas fumes in rescue efforts.

Probes Are Planned

State-federal investigations of the blast's cause will be launched as soon as debris is cleared away and the bodies removed, said Gov. John W. Bricker and J. J. Forbes, in charge of federal mine engineers.Mine engineers concentrated today on re-establishing ventilation to force out poisonous gases and in clearing a path to the explosion scene.Coroner C. C. Hardesty said his official inquest would not be conducted until all dead were removed.
While crowds of tearful relatives and friends continued a vigil at the mine entrance, the state set up a special office to handle applications for death and injury claims.
Nearly a half-million dollars is expected to be paid.

Holds No Hope

John Owens, president of the Ohio State Mine Workers, surveyed the wrecked tunnels last night and declared he held "no hope whatsoever" that any of the entombed miners were alive."However, nothing is being left undone to recover the men as soon as possible," he said, adding that they probably would not be reached before this afternoon.Experts from the Ohio and West Virginia mining departments and the United States bureau of mines assisted officials of the Hanna Coal company of Cleveland, owner of the mine, in directing rescue efforts.Four-man squads, equipped with an automatic loading machine, worked in shifts removing slate from the clogged passages.R. V. Clay, general manager of the company, said about 44 men, working as a unit, were trapped about three miles from the mine entrance. The other 27 were in scattered groups nearby when the explosion struck.

cil TuesdayIn compliance with the wishes of the streets, alleys and sidewalks committee, City Engineer F. S.
Barkhoff is expected to present city council tomorrow night with estimates on the proposed resurfacing of asphalt streets which have suffered frost damage.Freezing and thawing have left big holes in some of the city's principal streets and signs have been erected by Service Director Charles Kennedy to warn motorists of the danger.It is planned to fill the holes and seal cracks in the streets with a bituminous composition as soon as the weather moderates.The councilmen Tuesday night also are expected to give a second, and possibly a final reading to an ordinance amending the city's traffic code to make changes in parking restrictions. The measure was introduced at the council's last session.The traffic ordinance carries four changes, one creating a 15-minute parking zone on N. Lincoln ave., beside the postoffice, between E.
State st. and Sugartree alley.Another principal change is prohibiting parking on the north side of W. State st., between N. Ellis-worth and N. Howard aves.The ordinance also proposes a no-parking zone 400 feet on the north side of Aetna st., east from the intersection of Aetna and S.
Broadway, and a no-parking zone on the south side of Franklin ave., east from the junction of Franklin and S. Broadway.The engineer said today that the city still was awaiting confirmation by Pennsylvania railroad officials for an agreement reached here a month or so ago in which the railroad agreed to provide the right-of-way so that the city could put a new storm sewer under the tracks on South Broadway and S. Ellis-worth aves.Findings Are Made

LONDON, March 18.—Germany's boldest aerial stroke of the war—a one hour and 25 minute raid by 14 Heinkel bombers on the Scapa Flow naval anchorage—was followed today by expressions of belief in political quarters that Prime Minister Chamberlain is planning a drastic cabinet change to institute a more dynamic war policy.This, the 19th day of the war and the Prime Minister's 71st birthday, found Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini in a meeting at Brenner pass which centered speculation on whether Germany was planning an intensified conflict or a "peace offensive."

British Press Aroused

The British press clamored for a greater initiative in the government's direction of the war and the sharp division of opinion on Chamberlain's conduct of it was heightened by scheduled debate in the house of commons tomorrow.Informed political observers expressed the conviction that Chamberlain is planning ministerial changes soon, probably after the Easter parliamentary recess starting Thursday.Some thought he might adopt the policy set in the World war by David Lloyd George for a small war cabinet engaged solely in direction of higher war policy.In such a plan it was considered likely that Chamberlain would retain in the streamlined cabinet these three—Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon and Lord Halifax, foreign secretary.Lloyd George, the World war prime minister, also was mentioned in speculation on possible cabinet personnel.

German Fliers Elated

BERLIN, March 18.—Germany's sharpest aerial blow at Britain was a lightning stab at twilight, carried out on a meticulous plan.Elated young fliers told last night how their sky armada had pierced Britain's Orkney island air defenses in fading daylight Saturday and how they peered through the dark toward their targets on land and afloat.They could not tell what warships they hit but said that at least three battleships and one cruiser were struck and damaged.They said three of Britain's mightiest men-o-war, the 42,000-ton battle cruiser Hood and the 32,000-ton battle cruisers Repulse and Renown, were believed to have been in the royal navy's Scapa Flow anchorage when the German bombers roared in from the North sea.One flier told of "the bright fire of burning hangars" in the Germans' first air bombardment of the war on British land objectives.The communiqué said that Orkney island airports at Stromness, Kirkwall and Earth House, as well as a number of anti-aircraft positions, were bombed.Duty Will Be Host

Combine Named In Gangland Slayings(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, March 18.—A murder-to-order combine which killed by contract for "big shot" racketeers was said today by a Brooklyn prosecutor to have been responsible for at least a dozen—possibly 20—gangland slayings.Brooklyn District Attorney William F. O'Dwyer said 10 men were under arrest in connection with the crimes. He said the gang was implicated in seven murders and two attempted slayings in Brooklyn, and three killings in Sullivan county in up-state New York.Youthful gunmen, described as "young punks," did the trigger work under agreements with such racket overlords as Lucky Luciano, imprisoned Manhattan vice king; Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, and Jacob (Gurrah) Shapiro, O'Dwyer said.The prosecutor quoted one in-former as saying the gang leaders had boasted to him of having "rubbed out" seven witnesses in District Atty Thomas E. Dewey's Buckhalter trial, and had planned to kill the remaining four witnesses in the case.Sums of $10 and $20—sometimes as little as $3—were paid for the killings. O'Dwyer said the combine "had a finger in almost any racket you can name"—prostitution, extortion, intimidation of business, raider, gambling and what have you.The Brooklyn killers apparently were allied in some way with the Detroit Purple gang, the prosecutor said.Miss Howell Winner

ing Alliance with Democratic Chairman(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, March 18.—Close associates of Vice President Garner said today that he was seeking a political alliance with James A.
Farley in an effort to prevent a third term nomination for President Roosevelt.Such a coalition, they said, probably would offer Farley for second place on the ticket. No information was disclosed, however, as to the postmaster general's attitude.Garner was represented by friends as believing that his own convention strength, combined with Farley's, would be sufficient to stop a first-ballot nomination for Mr.
Roosevelt.It was reported reliably that intimates of Garner and Farley had been exchanging views for the last two weeks and that the two men probably would confer personally soon.Farley has given no public indication so far that he would not support the third term movement. A state of Democratic delegates has been put forward in his name in Massachusetts with the understanding that they will support the President if he runs.One southern Democratic senator, usually friendly with Garner, told reporters that the Illinois primary April 9 would determine whether the vice president would be a major factor in the national convention.This senator, asking anonymity, asserted that a big majority for Mr. Roosevelt in that race seriously would damage Garner's chances for the presidential nomination. Garner himself was described as believing that the primaries in Illinois, Wisconsin, California and Oregon would make or break his chances.

Axis to Moscow Is Considered(By Associated Press) BERLIN, March 18.—Extension of the Rome-Berlin axis to Moscow and possible eventual participation of Italy in the European war on Germany's side were cited today by excellently informed Berlin circles as the main apparent results of today's historic Brenner pass meeting between Fuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini.The two statesmen appeared to have worked on plans for a complete reorganization of Europe, with Soviet Russia as their partner.Berlin was filled with rumors that German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop would confer with Russian Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov as soon as possible, either in Berlin or Moscow.(The only interpretation given in Italy up to the same time to the meeting between the two leaders at the Brenner pass was that their conference was "cordial.")Until the time should come for filling in the date for a declaration of war, it was said, Italy would lose no opportunity to demonstrate to the western powers that she is Germany's ally economically, politically and ideologically.Italy for instance abruptly ceased furnishing certain implements of war to France as she had done hitherto.The present German-Italian coal agreement will be followed by other agreements for putting resources of each at the disposal of the other axis partner. (The coal agreement, to furnish the major part of Italy'scoal needs by rail, followed upon the British blockade of German coal being shipped by water.)In the event of Italy's entering the war, it was said Germany would supply her partner with all the things necessary for waging modern war.Hitler and Mussolini have further agreed, according to sources considered glib-edged, that an Italian-Russian rapprochement must follow next.This in turn involves careful delineation of spheres of influence in the Balkans.Brenner Pass Mystery Tied

The high drama enacted in the snow-swept Brenner pass by the totalitarian chiefs, Hitler and Mussolini, is widely held to be connected with peace and Sumner Welles' mission of fact-finding for President Roosevelt.Taking all the surrounding circumstances into consideration we are entitled to accept that viewpoint as a probability.We should be lacking in perception, however, if we didn't recognize that the two dictators almost certainly have been discussing the alternative to peace—bloody war, and the part in which the thus far
"non-belligerent" Italy might play.

FINANCIAL STEWARDSHIP

Attracting only casual interest, because his claim to renomination as his party's candidate for governor is unassailable, John W. Bricker last week filed nominating petitions bearing 153,000 signatures from Ohio's 88 counties and announced he would seek reelection on his first term record.

His quiet declaration was in contrast with the bombastic and temperate announcement of Martin L. Davey, his predecessor, who a few days previously had become the eighth Democrat to enter that party's primary free-for-all to pick an election opponent for Gov. Bricker. Oratorical fireworks are not in the governor's line; he has no need of them.

When he was a candidate for his first term, he promised nothing more sensational than sound financial stewardship, a neglected art in government but still the basic secret of good government. The state's business, he said, would be conducted in the open. "Legal graft," condoned by the Davey administration, would be abolished in favor of common honesty. The people's money would be spent carefully; Ohio would get its dollar's worth. Taxes would not be increased.

"It is my belief the people of Ohio want that kind of government continued," explained Gov. Bricker, announcing his candidacy for reelection. "In declaring my candidacy I pledge to the people of Ohio a continuance of that kind of administration."

Miracles being uncommon, a policy of sound financial stewardship did not find immediate acceptance. It was hard to believe the gray train had been taken off the schedule—some still can't tolerate that painful thought. There have been various attempts to test Gov. Bricker's sincerity, including the abortive "smear" of a Cuyahoga county relief crisis which, strangely enough, ceased to be a crisis as soon as local officials decided the governor really meant what he said.

It is significant that the nearest thing Gov. Bricker's critics can think of to say about him is that he is sitting on the treasury lid to qualify himself for his party's presidential nomination. This is a symptom of the two plus two makes six reasoning of the times. It discredits only those who use it. If honesty and prudence in spending public money are shortcomings, American politics needs more politicians with similar shortcomings.

This newspaper sincerely believes Gov. Bricker has given Ohio a sound and competent administration; that Ohio citizens should recognize good government by voting for its continuance.

THE HUMAN FACTOR AGAIN

One guess about what's going to happen to the national labor relations board as the result of investigations is as good as another. It's more than mildly interesting, however, to note how defenders are trying to draw critical fire to the board's personnel to get it away from the labor act and the board itself. Sen. Wagner, nominal author of the act, has taken this position.

The human factor always is important. In agencies which are judge, jury and prosecutor it is particularly susceptible to error. It is an odd circumstance of the times that some of the same persons who attacked the supreme court for daring to interpret laws in a certain way are now defending the labor relations board. The board has power not only to say what the law means but also to decide who shall be punished and to what extent.

Eventually, Americans may get so accustomed to being governed by the whims of persons they won't object. It's not an easy habit to develop; the trials and tribulations of the national labor relations board show why.

SCORE ONE FOR THE KNEE JERK

If answers to census questions about income can be answered by mail that probably makes everything all right. Not many rugged individualists will take the trouble anyway.

But they will have established once more the right to cry out against jobholders and get results. That is a million times more important than a freight train of statistics about income.

It proves the American knee jerk—the patella reflex—is still hale and hearty. In the long haul, this is about the only genuine characteristic of the political animal in the United States.

He is the only one of the species to make a fetish of batting down the ears of jobholders whenever the angle at which they're cocked suggests the jobholders are paying too much attention to matters that shouldn't concern them in a free country.

The rumour over census questions was silly. It also was symptomatic. The government has found out that the national reflex on nosiness is still working. It was worth the trouble.

PEACE NOTES

In contemporary history of the world at war the middle of March was notable for settlement of the fighting between Russia and Finland, called "peace" by the unthinking.

Footnote on the settlement, worth remembering by thorough historians when they come to write a summary, might be taken from almost any stock market story in any American newspaper of the time.

"Peace rumors" made the market sag. Worst sufferers were steels and aircrafts. "Speculative contingents" feared a sudden cessation of overseas hostility "would hit corporations in this country whose profits are being propped by war purchases."

One market operator, quoted by Associated Press, was inclined to see a bright side. "Peace fears from now on," he declared hopefully, "may be expected to take a less serious toll in the stock market." He meant that Finland's collapse had made it less likely than ever that the allies would make peace on Germany's terms. Marketwise, in other words, the war prospect looked good. Peace was a pleasantly remote possibility.

For Tuesday, March 19

THE LUNAR and mutual aspects ruling this day point to great activity and progress, with the forces and faculties under high stimuli. There may be tenacious obstacles and stubborn impediments to cope with, but splendid mentality, adaptability and the employment of fresh modes and tactics assure a definite step forward. Superiors, employers and groups will be found ready to co-operate, being impressed by brilliant ideas, novelty and ingenuity. Romance is not lacking in the personal life. In fact, be prepared for sudden developments.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of decided progress, with highly-keyed talents, initiative and daring in untried and novel fields of action attracting the hearty support of employers and superiors. There may be impediments or old static conditions to cope with, but ingenuity, skill, resourcefulness and fresh methods and procedures will reap enduring progress. The personal life is rich with romance or unexpected emotional adventures.

A child born on this day may have great versatility, intellectual strength and initiative, despite a restless, nervous and high-tensioned temperament. Its talents and fresh ideas assure favor from superiors.

Doughnuts Not Indigestible; It's Generally The Cooking

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Are doughnuts indigestible? This is an old prejudice which is based on the belief that doughnuts are made of fat which causes them to "lay on the stomach." Physiologists, however, tell us that it is not fat itself which is indigestible, but the method by which it is incorporated into the foods.

In making old-fashioned doughnuts, deep frying fat was the method used, and it was common for this fat to be broken down because of the lack of temperature control, which produces insoluble acids, the true culprits of indigestion. When doughnuts are made with the best fats, they are not indigestible. Doughnuts are also very nutritious, having 49 per cent carbohydrate, 45 per cent fat, and "six per cent protein which is quite a well-balanced fuel for the human engine."

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest. Only, and then only through his column.

Treatment of Falling Eyelashes What are the cause and treatment of falling eyelashes?

The usual cause is chronic blepharitis, which is a chronic inflammation of the hair follicles of the eyelid. Sometimes, after the blepharitis has healed, patients develop a habit of pulling the lashes. In rare instances the eyelashes fall out for no known cause.

Sometimes the use of three per cent zinc oxide ointment will lessen the itching that prompts people to pull the eyelashes.

Telling Child He's Adopted At what age should children be informed if they are adopted?

Psychologists believe that it is advisable to inform adopted children of that fact as early as possible. Young children so informed have no emotional reaction and grow up just as secure in their status as other children.

Three or four years is not too young to do this. The usual technique is to tell them that, whereas most of their friends had to be accepted, their foster parents picked them out and chose them from a group of children and liked them best.

Spencer Tracy essays the role of a doctor in "I Take This Woman", at the State tonight and Tuesday, with Hedy Lamarr as his co-star.

In their first appearance as a film romantic team, Tracy has the role of a skilled physician whose profession is his entire life and Miss Lamarr, the role of a social butterfly whose shattered romance drives her into the doctor's clinic to find something to fill her life.

Tracy plays his first modern role in several pictures. His latest seen here was as the colonial adventurer-explorer Major Robert Rogers. Miss Lamarr's only appearances in American films have been in "Al-giers" and "Lady of the Tropics".

The cast also includes Verree Teasdale, Kent Taylor, Laraine Day, Mona Barrie, Jack Carson, Louis Calhern, Frances Drake, Marjorie Main and Dalies Frantz, famous pianist playing his first completely dramatic film role.

The famous Karl Decker, New York doctor who prefers to conduct a clinic for people who have no money, to treating the imaginary ills of people who have too much, meets and marries Georgi Gragore, a society girl in love with a man whose wife refuses him a divorce.

When the girl's lover is forced to choose between his career and the girl, he chooses his work and she marries the doctor whom she met on shipboard. He teaches her the value of faith in self and work and she finds she loves him, but to prove it to herself, she meets her former lover one night and learns he is free to have a divorce. "SELF MADE GIRL" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

SYNOPSIS

Linda Perry, youngest of the five poverty-stricken Perry's lives with her family in a small frame house in the country near Philadelphia. She has no idea of social distinctions and the heartaches that will inevitably be hers when she and her socially prominent friends grow up. The first blow falls when the famous Mrs. Wagner breaks up the friendship between her daughter, Ruth and Linda. Then Linda's best friend, Constance Scott, is sent away to private school. At fifteen, in the background of school affairs, Linda knows loneliness for the first time. But Connie is loyal. During summer vacation the two attend a country club dance with Glenn and Everett McAllister. Linda adores Glenn from the first. After a wonderful summer together, Constance goes to France with her mother. It is rumored to Linda, nothing matters except Glenn's infrequent letters. Then the Perrys' real misfortunes begin. The grandmother dies. Mrs. Perry breaks her hip and Linda leaves school to nurse her. Mr. Perry is killed in an explosion at the mill. Sick with worry and drudgery, Linda's only relaxation is her friendship with George Cooke, who wants to marry her. Glenn McAllister has not returned. Linda realizes she may never see him again. So following her mother's death, she becomes engaged to George, and goes to live with her sister Claudine. But their cramped living conditions and the knowledge that her brother-in-law resents her presence makes life miserable for Linda. One night, she confides in her sister that she cannot go through with her marriage to George. That night she slips out of the house while the family is asleep—bound for New York and independence! The next evening Linda, weary and footsore, drops into "Tanya's Tea Room," in the West Fifties, for a thirty-five cent dinner. Gladys and Dora, the proprietors, offer her a temporary job.

CHAPTER XII

It was so easy—it was so easy it was hardly interesting. But a job was a job, and not to be turned down, and besides the people were wonderful, and just the kind Linda had always dreamed of knowing. She wrote, gleefully to Claudine, "I found a job, the very day I arrived in New York." She also wrote to Glenn, though he owed her two letters, and it was certainly his turn to write. No need to mention it was waiting on table and as it developed, dish washing and cleaning, on the side. "A position in a tea room," rounded so much better. It gave her a place to live, too, for that first night when they all set around, having their late dinner after the last customer had gone, Gladys made her tell her whole story all over again, for the benefit of Dora and Johnny and King, who made up what Gladys called "the immediate family."

Flushed with success and a little light-headed from the wine Johnny produced from a cupboard, Linda made quite a story of it. She saw herself slim and lovely and childish beside portly Gladys and colorless Dora. The little frame home where she'd lived took on a marked resemblance to the Scotts' house and Papa was retired, instead of night watchman.

They were all impressed and King, who was the most susceptible, almost cried, when she told about almost marrying somebody she did not love, in order to escape dependence on her sisters, and then not being able to go through with it and running away.

"That," said King, "is what I call guts." King lived with his family in Brooklyn, because he couldn't bear to hurt his mother's feelings by leaving and living anywhere else. "And now what are you going to do?" Gladys asked.

"Well—" Linda was startled. "I did think—Didn't you say I could work for you for a while? Or maybe I didn't do so well tonight. I was a little rattled, and I know I did spill some soup, but I—"

"Oh, poor child! Of course, you did a right. And you look so sweet and Russian in Nola's costume. Of course, you can stay. What I meant is, where are you going to live?" "Well, at first, after that I'll look around. Of course, it will depend somewhat on how much you pay me. How much did you think I'd be worth?"

"We never have paid very much," Gladys admitted. "It's always been sort of a family affair. Nola just sort of helped out and took it out in meals and, of course, Dora and I have all the responsibility, and paying for things, and so I—"

"Why don't we let Linda live with us?" Dora suggested, pouring herself another glass of wine.

"That's a keen idea," King said. "I'll get your suitcases, Linda, and you come along with me, to claim them!"

It wasn't at all the way she'd expected it to be. New York is supposed to be such a cold, unfriendly city. She'd expected to find friends and a position and a nice place to live, but not the first day. Not before she'd been lonely and, perhaps a little hungry and frightened.

Claudine and Blanche would be horrified at her going to live with a couple of girls she'd only known a few hours. But you could see the kind they were—big-hearted and unconventional, but nice girls, just the same. And the boys were swell too—interested in art and all sorts of worth while things. Too bad they weren't a little better looking. Tommy wasn't so bad, but he was awfully slim and reedy looking and his hair was too long, and King was almost chubby, in spite of high-arched nose and small, eager eyes.

Think of them, taking her in this way—giving her a job, making her one of themselves! Even giving her a place to live!

Of course as an apartment, there wasn't much to be said for it. It was just two rooms, on the third floor of the building that housed the tea room.

"It's convenient," Gladys said, a little later, moving magazines off the couch that was to be Linda's, "and there's no use in fixing it up, because we have all our nice things downstairs and we only sleep here, anyway. Nobody ever comes up."

Nobody'd want to, Linda thought, looking around the two small, hopelessly cluttered rooms, with dismay she hoped didn't show in her face. She had thought Claudine's house was sloppy. But, in spite of the babies and the laundry and the scattered toys, it had a general orderliness, and this place was just a wreck. It looked as though they had just moved in and hadn't had time to put anything away.

* Not a closet in the place. Just hooks along the walls and clothes hung, those that weren't on the floor and on the beds and chairs, behind flimsy cretonne curtains. One room was nearly filled with two beds, two dressers and two chairs. The other held a sewing machine, a work table, on which patterns and silk were littered, two wobbly chairs, and a packing box and the couch that was to be Linda's.

The bathroom, as large as the bedroom, and criss-crossed with a system of clothes lines upon which hung lingerie, stockings and a collection of colored tablecloths, was like a bit of Greenland.

"They never put a radiator in there," Dora explained, "but if you run the hot water full till in the tub for a while, it helps some. We don't have to pay for the hot water up here, but we do in the tea room, so wash up here, and then it won't matter how much hot water you use."

Soberly Linda unpacked the things she needed, hung them as carefully as she could. Before she had her bed made up the other two girls were in bed and asleep.

For a long while, though she was tired and her eyes were heavy, she forced herself to be awake and think it out. Who ever heard of a business run the way this one seemed to be? There were only a few strangers who came to dinner, nearly everyone was an acquaintance; if not a friend, of one of the girls.

The two boys, King Warford and Johnny Lane, seemed to be equally devoted to both girls. May, the neat Negro maid who did the kitchen work was apparently the only paid employee.

And who were all these people? Gladys said she had a mother in California, that she was a graduate of the state university and used to work in an office. Dora, who also came from California, had a mother, father and a couple of brothers in Berkeley, described herself as a newspaper woman, but did publicity work when she wasn't helping out in the tea room. The absent Nola was an artist.

Linda couldn't quite figure them out. The charming open fire downstairs, the blue silk curtains, the quaint painted walls, the gleaming copper and brass, the order of the clean, shining kitchen. And then this squalor and mess up here!

It won't take me long to get out and find a better place to live, she thought, before she let her heavy eyes close. This will do for a couple of days. . . . Why do people make such a fuss about finding work? It's easy. Wait till I really get started.

In the morning sunlight the rooms were even dingier than they had appeared the night before. A tenement couldn't be worse, Linda thought, looking with distaste at the stained brownish wallpaper patterned with funeral urns sprouting what appeared to be wilted cabbage leaves. There were even cobwebs in the corners, and cracks in the ceiling. What a place!

But May had coffee and fluffy yellow cornbread ready for them when they came downstairs, and the day started off as gayly as the night before with only a few moans from Gladys, who simply must stop dawdling and do the marketing—when she'd had just a drop more coffee and another cigar.

The missing Nola, full of apologies for last night's absence, came in at 11, to help serve lunch, and brought with her the boy friend, Paul Ponatowski, who explained to Linda as though it were a point of honor, that he was not a Russian but a Pole.

"If you like him," Nola said, "you can have him. I've been trying to get rid of him for years. He eats too much. Keeps me broke feeding him."

"I assure you," he told Linda, "that it's not so. I am a very light eater. We will dine together very soon, and you shall see. The cost will be negligible."

"I never go out," Linda said laughing, trying not to be embarrassed by his bold admiration, and the way Nola disposed of him as a gigolo. "At least I wouldn't go out with you!" she added mentally, for she'd never taken another girl's boy friend and she wasn't going to start now.

But Paul persisted, and Nola just laughed, and before the week was out he'd taken her to the zoo, Grant's tomb, the Statue of Liberty, the Ghetto, Chinatown, the Battery and was quite frank in saying he'd take her to the theaters and night clubs, if she'd put up the money.

She wanted to, but she had so little, and Gladys hadn't said a word about pay, beyond room and board. Linda hadn't argued the point at first, because it seemed she'd only stay a few days, but time went on, and she was happy and comfortable, and there was always a reason for not going hunting that day. By the end of the second week she was almost blind to the brown wallpaper upstairs, and nothing, not even the cracked ceilings, bothered her.

Still young, handsome, always well dressed, Paul had no small part in Linda's contentment with the new life. But why didn't he get out and do something instead of sitting around the tea room all the time? Why didn't he work?

"Why should he?" Nola shrugged when Linda brought up the question. "He gets by."

Apparently that was all anyone cared about. Just to get by, Nola, who was easily the handsomest and cleverest of the girls, free-lanced, which meant that she worked very hard for a few days or a week, and then loafed until the money was gone.

CAR COST PARED BY LUBRICATION

Particularly the Trained Lubrication Service At Butler's

The pistons in a car slide farther than the car rolls.

There is more bearing surface in the car springs than in the engine. The pressure on the drive shaft pinion teeth, with a working area less than that of your thumb nail, is sufficient to lift the weight of the car!

Neglect of steering gear lubrication ranks high up with faulty brakes as a cause of accidents!

Startling? Yes, but it's cause for worry for such things, and many others are cared for by regular attention to lubrication—which, in addition to reducing wear and cutting costs is the greatest safety service in the automotive field today.

How to Avoid Damage

Trained operators at the Butler Service Center on W. State st., are quick to detect conditions in the chassis that might have costly, if not fatal, consequences. The lubricator while servicing the under side of the car will report a loosening steering arm, a hydraulic brake fitting that has started to leak, the presence of grease at a brake drum which might soon cause trouble. Equally important, the side walls of the tire can be seen during the greasing operation and dangerous bulges—bulges that tell pain as words that a blow-out is coming—can be reported and proper steps taken to prevent a serious accident.

But maybe comfort appeals to you. And maybe the "old bus ain't what she used to be." If not, are you really having it lubricated and inspected as the manufacturer suggested? When it squeaks it indicates that damage is already done. A well lubricated car has mighty few squeaks, very little wear, slow depreciation, and great comfort.

Neglect of lubrication sets up a harshness that causes the glass to pound down the padding in the window channels. But the preventive medicine—lubrication—is very inexpensive, in fact an investment of the soundest kind.

More Than Just Grease

But lubrication work in the modern service center means more, far more, than merely applying the right lubricant in the right quantity in the right place and watching for dangerous chassis conditions. It includes protection of the battery by the addition of just the right amount of distilled water, a report on the condition of battery connections, and a tightening of the battery if loose—all vital factors in prolonging battery life.

Thus the skillful lubricator has become more than a man with a grease gun. He is a protector of our pocketbooks by his ability to reduce depreciation in a highly complicated and delicate machine. His service assures further savings by the timely attention he gives to the battery and by his inflation and inspection of tires.

He provides maximum comfort by reducing friction in springs and shackles and this in turn prevents loosening up of the body with consequent noise. He is the guardian of our safety for it is impossible for the owner to inspect the vital parts of the steering and brake mechanisms, but this is done as the car is lubricated.

Ford Test Car To Visit Salem

Mercury economy test car gets under way as T. J. O'Neil, Cleveland branch manager of Ford Motor company, officially starts driver "Bill" Graham on his way.

One of the most significant economy test runs in automotive history is being conducted throughout the Cleveland branch territory of the Ford Motor company, and this city has been chosen as one of the principal points the test car will visit. The test car is a stock model 1940 Mercury 8 sedan. It will arrive in Salem at 2 p. m. Tuesday and be met at the city limits by a motorcycle police escort and go direct to the E. L. Grate garage to be officially checked.

According to Earl Grate, local Ford and Mercury dealer, the purpose of the economy run is to demonstrate the progress of automotive engineering during the past decade, and more particularly to bring attention to the fact that while the most economical speed for the average cars ten years ago was between 15 and 20 miles per hour, modern automobiles give their best performance at approximately 45.

Proves the Facts

"Mercury owners talked about getting 20 miles per gallon of gasoline," Grate said, "but owners of other makes were skeptical and asked us for the facts. So it was decided to take a stock Mercury and let people find out for themselves just what mileage this car will give."

Mounted on the hood of the test car is a visible gasoline meter holding one-tenth of a gallon of gasoline. Local personages will be invited to drive the test car and their mileage results will be carefully checked.

Grate has one of these meters on one of his demonstrators and citizens of Salem are invited to take a test drive.

PLAYOFF STARTS TONIGHT IN CLASS A LEAGUE

ALL-STAR GAME VICTORY HELPS NATS' PRESTIGE

National Leaguers Top American Team, 2-1 In Benefit

By WHITNEY MARTIN.
TAMPA, March 18.—The long-abused National leaguers today strutted the streets in broad daylight, and if pressed, very lightly would say casually: "Oh, yes, the American league. We had their stars over for a practice game yesterday. Beat them, 2 to 1, with our reserves."

Which, in essence, is true. The National league all-stars did win an exhibition game, with more than 13,000 spectators contributing approximately $20,000 to the Finnish relief fund. And three substitutes did blend their talents to score the winning run in the ninth inning.

Proved Nothing
But in reality, the game proved nothing, except that the pitchers are far ahead of the batters in spring training, and that a lineup of sluggers is just another lineup when the fast ones, and not the hurriers, are snapping.

However, the victory was greeted gleefully by the senior circuit. It was St. Patrick's day to the rest of the country, but it was groundhog day to the National leaguers, who popped out of the holes in which they had been hiding since the last World series.

The siege guns in the American lineup failed to get much more than a loud foul. They were held to five hits. Bill Dickey and Frank Crosetti getting two each and Jimmy Foxe one, and none was better than a single.

The National leaguers collected six blows, all singles, putting two of them together in the ninth for the ball game.

The Americans took the lead in the second inning when DiMaggio walked, went to second on Dickey's single, and went home on Crosetti's first hit.

Tie Score
The Nationals tied it up in the fourth when Ott walked, advanced when Harry Danning was hit by Buck Newsum, and scored on Demaree's single to right, beating a fine throw by Williams by inches.

Bob Feller started the eighth inning for the Americans. He had plenty of stuff, but was wild. A double play pulled him out of a hole in that inning, but in the ninth Al Lopez, Boston Bee catcher and the pride of Tampa, sent a slashing single to center, went to second when Hal Trosky, Cleveland first baseman, dropped Rolfe Hemley's throw on Terry Moore's sacrifice, and scored the winning run on Pete Coscarart's single through short.

Bill McKechnie, Red manager in charge of the National team, started Paul Derringer, and followed with Kirby Higbe, Luke Hamlin, Buckie Walters and Harry Gumbert, with Gumbert the winning pitcher. Joe McCarthy, American pilot, who started seven of his Yankees, sent Red Ruffing to the mound, and followed him with Newsum, Dutch Leonard, and Feller.

Strong Akron Team Plays Motors In Benefit Game

M. O'Neill's, One of State's Best Amateur Teams, To Appear Here Tomorrow Night

Basketball as played by one of Ohio's outstanding amateur teams will be displayed to Salem fans at the Memorial building tomorrow night when the M. O'Neill Motors road team, composed of leading players from the city's Class A league.

The game will be played as a benefit for Sammy Drakulich, who is recovering in Salem City hospital from an operation for a rupture suffered while playing in a basketball tournament at Sebring Saturday, March 9.

Arrangements for the game were made by friends and teammates of Drakulich, who is captain and manager of the Althouse road and league teams.

Won Sebring Tourney
The O'Neill's won the Sebring tournament in which Drakulich was playing when he was injured.

Ranked as one of the state's leading amateur teams, the O'Neill's have a season's record of 48 victories against only six defeats. In addition to the Sebring tourney, they have won tournaments at Barber-ton and Canton this year. They finished as runner-up to the Youngstown Sheet & Tube in the northeastern Ohio district AAU tournament at Cleveland last year, then advanced to the second round.

The Great Dean Signs Contract For 1940 Season

OFF THE CUFF

LOS ANGELES, March 18.—Dizzy Dean signs 1940 contract with Chicago Cubs at reported salary of $10,000.

Michigan Victor
INDIANAPOLIS—Warren Breidenbaugh's anchor leg in mile relay enables Michigan to win team title in Butler relays for seventh straight year with 351-5 points, beating out Indiana, which broke world indoor record for distance medley relay with 10:10.3 performance. Ohio State scored 14 1/2 points.

Fenske Sets Record
CHICAGO—Chuck Fenske betters all records for three-quarter mile race at Armour Tech relays, surpassing Lloyd Hahn's listed indoor record by 3.7 seconds and John Borican's unofficial mark by 1.5 seconds.

Equals World Record
LONG BEACH, Calif.—Clyde Jeffrey, Stanford, equals world record of 9.4 for 100-yard dash at Long Beach relays.

Win Tennis Titles
HAMILTON—Bernard—Elwood Cooke defeats Gardner Mulloy, 6-1, 7-5, 6-3, to win Bermuda men's tennis title; Sarah Paley Fabyan beats Pauline Betz, 6-2, 6-4, in women's final.

Case Champion
KANSAS CITY—Tarkio (Mo.) college wins national intercollegiate basketball tournament, trouncing San Diego (Calif.) State, 1939 runner-up, 52-42, in final.

Training Camp Briefs

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., March 18.—Frankie Frisch plans to carry a full crew of Pittsburgh Pirates almost up to May 15, when major league squads must be cut to 25 players. His idea is to get a good look at the rookies under fire. After the cut the squad will number 10 pitchers, three catchers, six infielders and six outfielders.

Obedient Orders
FORT MYERS, Fla.—Manager Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland Indians isn't worried a bit by the fact Bob Feller didn't shine in the All-star game yesterday. Vitt had ordered Feller to take things easy and told Catcher Rolfe Hemley to see that the Iowa flash followed instructions. Both obeyed orders.

Reds To Be Busy
TAMPA, Fla.—Manager Bill McKechnie promises "plenty of work" for the Cincinnati Reds before their return to the Grapefruit league wars Tuesday. He thinks they looked "terrible" against the Red Sox Saturday. Another worry for the Reds concerns Ival Goodman's right shoulder, which he hurt in the All-Star game last summer. The injury has affected his throwing and an operation may be necessary.

Fit Companion
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Just when there was beginning to be some question whether Lefty Lee Grissom would be a fit companion for that other southpaw wonder of the New York Yankees, Lefty Gomez, the former made it clear he would qualify.

In yesterday's game with the St. Louis Cards Grissom took two strikes batting left-handed, then crossed the plate and took a called third strike from a right-handed position.

Veteran In Shape
MIAMI, Fla.—The veteran Walter Beck should have many games for the Phillies this year. The ace fireman of the Phils last year showed himself in good shape yesterday in holding the Boston Bees to two hits and no runs in three innings.

McCoy Hits .267
ANAHEIM, Calif.—Benny McCoy is hitting only .267 for the Philadelphia Athletics, but Connie Mack is sure his $45,000 beauty will be using the ball solidly by the time the season opens. McCoy has been at bat 30 times in 14 games and collected eight hits, four singles and four doubles. He has driven in four runs and scored five himself.

CHAMPION CAGE SQUADS HEROES TO HOME FOLKS

New Philly, New Carlisle Capture Ohio Basketball Titles

COLUMBUS, March 18.—Residents of New Philadelphia and New Carlisle today heaped "hero worship" upon members of their state championship high school basketball teams.

The New Philadelphia Quakers kept their season record clean—25 straight wins—as they routed Canton McKinley's unbeaten Bulldogs in the Class A finale, 30-22.

New Carlisle's Tigers took the Class B crown by beating Canfield, 42-26, in the final game to hang up a season record of 29 victories in 30 contests.

10-Mile Caravan
An automobile caravan 10 miles long met the New Philadelphia team at West Lafayette and escorted the Class A kings 27 miles to their own gymnasium where a crowd of 1,500 saw Principal J. B. Rudey and Coach Paul Hoerneman honor team members individually and collectively.

The New Carlisle lads received no less impressive a welcome home and were escorted by a caravan of 70 automobiles on a tour of the county. R. M. Borst, principal, declared Monday would be a school day, but admitted he "didn't know how much school there would be."

Five of the 10 players on the New Philly squad are juniors and will be back next year.

Coach Hubert Cole of the New Carlisle club is not so fortunate, however, since eight of his 10 stringers graduate in June.

The three-day state tournament set a new attendance record of 36,333. The old mark of 34,196 was set in 1938.

CONCERNING BUTTONS — As a matter of information to local housewives, certain facts about buttons should be considered. Pearl Buttons, made from mussel shell, have proved their superiority over every other type of button. No other button combines the durability, lustre and beauty of Pearls. It is important, therefore, that you examine carefully the buttons on wash garments you buy. If they are Pearl Buttons you can be certain of the service they will render, and you can be assured that their presence is a sign of quality in the garment itself. See that all wash garments you purchase have Pearl Buttons.
